PLANT A TREE; GROW A FUTURE - HARPERCOLLINS PUBLISHERS INDIA AND VEDANTA LTD. INSPIRE ENVIRONMENTAL STEWARDSHIP AT CT PUBLIC SCHOOL

Harper Collins Publishers India and Vedanta Ltd. have joined hands to launch the nationwide plantation drive titled 'Plant a Tree; Grow a Future'. As part of this initiative, they visited CT Public School on 24th July 2023, aiming to motivate and inspire children to take up the noble cause of environmental preservation. The 'Plant a Tree; Grow a Future' drive emphasizes the importance of trees as valuable assets for future generations, providing cleaner air and natural shade.

TREE FACTS

In one day a human being breathes oxygen equivalent to 3 cylinders

Each oxygen cylinder on an average costs Rs. 700/-, without subsidy.

All this oxygen is derived free of cost from the surrounding trees.

So, in a day one uses oxygen worth Rs. 2100/- and for full year it is Rs. 7,66,500/-. If we consider an average life span of 65 years; the costs of oxygen we use becomes a staggering sum of Rs. 500,00,000/- = Rs. 50 million.

Very few people look at Trees as a RESOURCE and there is rampant tree cutting going on everywhere which MUST STOP.

Elements of AI

Artificial intelligence is not a substitute for human intelligence; it is a tool to amplify human creativity and ingenuity.

OPINION

Art of Parenting- The Golden Rules

Article Written By:
Mr. Rohit Mehra
IRS Officer

I think parenting is an art as well as a science. Parenting is like gardening. Parenting and gardening are similar in a lot of ways. Both experiences are a wild ride, full of ups and downs. A gardener seeds the plant, nourishes it and provides a protected space to grow. He provides an eco-system in which plant grows. We, as parents, see ourselves in our child. Sometimes, we expect our child to behave as adults.

Childhood is a very interesting and memorable phase of life of a child and as parents, we should rejoice the childhood of our child. We should make parenting a joyful process. The following are my 10 golden- rules of parenting.

Children learn by observing:

Children are the world's best "copy cats." They copy and imitate their parents more than anyone else. It reminds you how important it is to think carefully about what you say and do in front of your children. Your home is your child's first classroom. Remember that your children are watching and copying everything you do. Choose your words and actions wisely. Children will follow your example more than your advice. Set a positive example for your children. So, parenting is also being a role-model for your child.

Nature versus Nurture:

There is an everlasting debate whether our children are the product of their nature (genes) or their nurture (grooming). As per one school of thought, it is the nature that is our genetics determine our behaviour. Our abilities and personality traits are the product of our 'nature'. Other school of thought suggests that our environment, upbringing and social influences determine our behaviour. We are nurtured to behave in a certain way. Some research suggests that genes determine personality traits. Children are naturally predisposed to certain qualities. There is no doubt that genes play a role in whether your child is bubbly, highly frustrated, or calm. But, the influence of parents is also much deep in making what the child becomes. So, we must groom and parent them with an aim to bring-out their best version.

Parenting is Imbibing Value:

There is no doubt that the child should be taught manners, etiquette and civility but our core focus of parenting should be on imbibing values. If a child has all the manners and good behaviour in life and he does not possess good value like that of honesty, compassion, kindness, love and respect for parents, he is lacking something very important in life. To quote Swami Vivekanand, it is not the tailor who makes a gentleman; but, it is the character that makes a gentleman. Character is nothing but sum total of values a child has. It is said that our thought leads to action, our action leads to our habits, our habits lead to our character and our character decides our destiny.

Yes Parenting:

As parents, we are put in the position of saying "no" to our children quite frequently. Can I hang-out with friends? No. Can I do my home work after I play? No. Saying 'no' is meant to set boundaries and limits. But, eventually our default response for everything they ask is 'no'. This pestering of 'no' upsets the child. This results in child's brain to filter-out 'no' as noise. Say 'yes', more than no. It strengthens the parent-child relationship and develops confidence in the child. You are not going to lose anything by saying 'yes'. Try the exercise of saying 'yes' for a week or so. You will be surprised to see the positive results of saying yes.

Explore Their Creativity:

If someone asks me what is the core purpose of parenting? I would say discovering uniqueness of your child and nourishing it. Every child is different and unique. We try to make our child best and not unique. To be best means to be better than others in a particular field be it schooling, sports or any other area. To be unique means you are in your own zone. To be unique is a class in itself. When the child is in his zone, he is enjoying his own inherent creativity and potentials. We have always to bear in mind that each child has different potential, uniqueness and personality traits. You cannot grow mangoes on a banana tree! The aim of parenting should not be to shape or mold the child.

The way we talk to our children becomes their inner voice.

HONOUR

BHAVYAKRITI OF CT PUBLIC SCHOOL SHINES IN TAEKWONDO CHAMPIONSHIP

The indomitable spirit of Bhavyakriti, a talented 3rd-grade student from CT Public School, recently brought glory to the school in the Open Taekwondo Championship held at Faridkot. The Unsung Heroes of India's Independence Struggle: Their Legacy Lives On India's journey to independence from British colonial rule was a collective effort marked by the sacrifices, determination, and unwavering spirit of countless individuals. While history books often shine a spotlight on well-known leaders, it is essential to recognize the unsung heroes who played crucial roles in shaping the nation's destiny. These heroes may not have adorned the front pages, but their contributions were no less significant.

Alluri Sitarama Raju:

A fearless freedom fighter from Andhra Pradesh, Raju led the Rampa Rebellion, a tribal uprising against the British, advocating for land rights and freedom. His dedication to the cause and ability to rally marginalized communities made him a true hero of the struggle.

Matangini Hazra:

Known as "Gandhi Buri" or "Old Lady Gandhi," Matangini Hazra was a brave woman who led protests against the salt tax and participated in the Quit India Movement. She was martyred holding the Indian National Flag during a protest, embodying nonviolent resistance.

Bhikaji Cama:

A prominent figure in the Indian independence movement, Cama designed the first Indian national flag. Her efforts to spread awareness about India's freedom struggle on the international stage were significant.

Udham Singh:

An avenger of the Jallianwala Bagh massacre, Singh assassinated Michael O'Dwyer, the former Lieutenant Governor of Punjab, in London. His act was a symbol of resistance against colonial oppression and a tribute to the lives lost in the tragic event.

Kamaladevi Chattopadhyay:

A pioneer in the fight for women's rights and the revival of traditional Indian arts, Kamaladevi was also active in the Quit India Movement. Her commitment to social and cultural reforms left an indelible mark on the nation's progress.

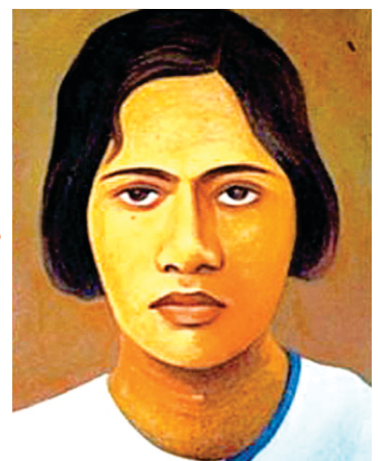

Chandra Shekhar Azad:

Often referred to as "Azad," he was a fearless revolutionary who played a significant role in various acts of resistance against British rule. His determination, strategic planning, and valiant sacrifices inspired many to join the struggle.

Kanaklata Barua:

A young freedom fighter from Assam, Kanaklata Barua participated in the Quit India Movement and led the "Mrityu Bahini" or Death Squad. Her legacy inspires generations of women to stand up for their rights.

Gopaldas Parmanand Sippy:

A journalist and social reformer, Sippy's contribution to the freedom movement through his writings and activism was substantial. He used his pen against British oppression.
